The AAB genome group comprises all the cultivars that have two sets of chromosomes donated by Musa acuminata and one by Musa balbisiana. Genome groups are part of the nomenclature system developed by Kenneth Shepherd and Norman Simmonds.

Some of the cultivars, like Plantains, are starchy types that are usually cooked, whereas others, like Silk, are sweet dessert types that are eaten raw.

Contents

- See also on this website

See also on this website

The domestication of the banana

Contributors to this page: Anne Vézina.

Page last modified on Tuesday, 27 September 2016 11:18:36 CEST by Anne Vézina.

The original document is available at http://www.promusa.org/AAB+genome+group